Board OKs school tax hike

Budget includes $86,000 salary/benefit increase

By WENDY HANSCOM

SAD #44 directors tentatively settled Thursday on a budget for the coming year of $5.96 million, up 1.1 percent from this year's budget of $5.9 million.

The budget includes a $83,221 increase in the school local tax bill, a $86,360 increase in salary and benefits for teachers, administrators and some staff, and it kills the controversial Andover 2000 proposal.

The state now says it will hold its funding level steady for next year, but the district's non-discretionary costs, such as insurance, went up. In order to hold the total budget relatively stable, the directors were forced to make some cuts.

After four budget workshops, the board opted to cut: elementary art, $54,500 from a special education contingency account, an elementary teacher, a high school social studies teacher, $7,000 from field trip transportation expenses, a copy center position and 2/5s of an elementary physical education teacher.

The proposed cuts total roughly $140,000.

It is not yet certain how the $86,360 in raises and benefit increases will be allocated, since negotiations with teachers, administrators and secretaries are still underway.

Before the final budget workshop Thursday, the board met for one hour in executive session to discuss the issue.

Following the executive session, the $86,360 increase was presented

Spring pick-up trashed

By MARK SHANAHAN

Citing budget constraints and the reduction in highway department personnel, Bethel selectmen voted Monday to discontinue the town's annual curbside spring pick-up of white goods and demolition debris.

In previous years as part of a community-wide spring cleaning effort, the town's six-person highway department had dedicated as much as two weeks each May to picking up residents' used tires, debris, old furniture and white goods.

This year, however, having already agreed to cut one position from the road crew, selectmen said the cost of collecting the refuse would certainly outweigh considerations of cleanliness.

But Bethel's budget down

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel selectmen and the town's 12-member budget committee have agreed on a proposed town budget for FY '93 of $1,111,692—down more than $20,000 from the current year's budget of $1,131,895.

The agreement marks the first time in recent years that the two groups have agreed completely on a budget, according to Town Clerk Merton Brown.

The selectmen and budget committee also agreed on two major items that will not directly affect this year's bottom line—they voted down the purchase of a new backhoe and a second police cruiser.

Police Chief Dale Bellman had pushed the case for a second cruiser, arguing that it would help the police provide more visible coverage and compensate somewhat for the loss of summer foot patrol (a budget cutting casualty). It would also help to eliminate the need for officers to use their own cars while on duty, Bellman argued.

Both the selectmen and the budget committee agreed that the town would soon need a new cruiser, which they approved, but they nixed the idea of equipping and maintaining a second vehicle.

Both groups also agreed that the town should rent, rather than purchase, a backhoe for the estimated 200 hours a year the

Residents and politicians again challenge Guard's overflight plan

Argue DEIS understates impact on region

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Air National Guard's plan to lower the flight-training floor over much of western Maine "is a kind of warfare on our way of life," said Mitchell Goodman of Temple, summing up the feelings of most—but not all—of the approximately 70 people who attended Thursday's meeting in Mexico on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement for the plan.

"Is it the civilian government that controls our lives," Goodman asked the Guard's delegation, "or is it the military?"

The Guard's plan calls for lowering the training floor to 300 feet in the Condor Military Operations Area (MOA), which overlies much of the western mountains of Maine, including the SAD #44 area. Most military training flights in Condor are currently confined to the airspace above 7,000 feet.

The plan also calls for the creation of a new operations area, The Great State of Maine MOA, which would blanket most of northwestern Maine, including Baxter State Park. Training flights in the proposed new MOA would be allowed to fly to within 100 feet of the ground.

A crowd estimated variously at between 250 and 400 northern Maine residents turned out earlier last week at a meeting in Presque Isle to protest the plan.

Comments at both the Mexico and Presque Isle meetings were limited to the Guard's DEIS, a six-volume, 10-pound document that speakers at both meetings termed wholly inadequate.

For example, speaker after speaker proposal is implemented, nearly the entire length of the Appalachian trail in Maine would be under low-level training areas.

"The experience of hikers on this national treasure is incompatible with encountering an F-16 at 100 feet and 600 miles per hour," Johnson said.

And noting that environmental regulations require the military to steer clear of known hawk and eagle nesting sites, he said "I ask that I be accorded the same courtesy of avoiding my nesting site as a raptor."

Walter Hatch of Bethel pointed to the number of retired people, like himself, who move to the region in large part for its peace and quiet. "Just to have a house built is a big boost to the local economy," he said, a boost that would be lost if the area were to become less attractive to retirees.

Other speakers questioned the possibility for the increased risk for collisions, crashes and the release of hazardous chemicals, but the chief environmental threat in the minds of most appeared to be noise.

In calculating environmental impact of the noisier low-level flights,

Bethel votes tonight on GAMM II

By MICHAEL DANIELS

At their special town meeting tonight Bethel voters will once again speak their mind on the town's ownership of the former GAMM II property at the Airport Industrial Park.

But the outcome of tonight's meeting now appears likely to be less decisive than opponents of the GAMM II project had originally intended—unless either or both of the two warrant articles dealing with the property are successfully amended from the floor.

Clare Piawlock, who drafted the petition that led to the two articles being put before tonight's meeting, said her intent had been to force the town to sell the building as soon as possible.

"The intention was for the town to get out of it and break even if possible," she said.

But town officials and members of the Airport Industrial Park Committee, a volunteer group assisting in marketing and managing the property, now say that as it is written the article authorizes the town to sell the building, but does not force the town to sell to the first buyer who offers enough money to cover the town's expenses.

Committee members had earlier worried that the article, if approved by voters tonight, would force the town to sell to whoever showed up with the money—even to speculators who might not create jobs but rather leave the building empty and wait to resell it for a quick profit when the commercial real estate market improves.

But committee members now say that the article leaves the town free to hold out for a buyer who will create jobs. Their reading of the article also allows for the option of the town retaining possession and leasing the building, or entering into a lease/purchase arrangement.

Accordingly, the committee is now recommending that voters approve the first article.

The second of the two articles is less open to conflicting interpretations. It calls for voters to direct the selectmen not to accept money from the federal government to underwrite the purchase.

The town has applied for a $178,500 Industrial Development Grant from the Farmers Home Administration. Town officials say the town has an excellent chance of recovering the full cost of the purchase as well as associated expenses.

Town Manager Madeleine Henley said if voters approve the second article the town would still own the building, but it would be financed with loan, rather than grant, funds.

The town is also likely to turn down the grant if a suitable buyer is found for the property prior to the grant being awarded.

Both supporters and opponents of the GAMM II project agree that voter turnout tonight will be key.

"I just hope that everyone turns out to have their say and be counted," Piawlock said.

Other articles

Voters will also be asked tonight to approve a "Reinvest in Hometown America" Resolution, to extend the town's floodplain management ordinance and to authorize the loan which will finance the Lower Main Street sewer project.

The "Reinvest in Hometown America" Resolution was placed on the warrant at the request of Rev. Brendon Bass. It urges Congress and the president to reinvest the so-called "Peace Dividend" in the domestic and human infrastructure of the country.

The resolution has the support of Gov. McKernan, the Maine congressional delegation and both houses of the state Legislature. It was turned down, however, by the 5 percent of Bethel voters who turned out for last year's annual town meeting.

In asking that the resolution be placed once again on a town meeting warrant, Rev. Bass attributed its earlier defeat to patriotic fervor at the time of the Gulf War, and to lack of knowledge on the part of the voters at the meeting as to what the resolution really called for.

The floodplain management ordinance on the warrant is an extension of the town's current ordinance, which was adopted in April of last year in order to comply with more

Telstar softballers seek second state championship

By WENDY HANSCOM

Ask Telstar girls' softball coach Jim Lunney where his team is going to be at the end of the season and he won't hesitate to tell you. That they'll be right where they've been for the last ten seasons—in the state Class C playoffs.

Lunney predicts with a tremendous amount of depth, an all-state pitcher and several Mountain Valley Conference all-stars on his side, the team can't help but make the state playoffs for the eleventh year in a row.

Last season the team went all the way to capture the state Class C crown. They beat Madawaska in the championship contest.

In the four game tournament, the Rebels gave up only six runs and kept their opponents scoreless in 25 of 28 innings.

For now, the playoffs are just a goal for June. The preseason Rebels are concentrating on firming up a starting line-up.

Junior all-state pitcher Stacie Kangas will be returning to the mound for her third season. "She's a little bit taller and a little bit stronger this year," Lunney said. "As far as I know she'll be the best pitcher in the state Class C."

Her catcher, junior Danielle Bernier, has caught Kangas for the last two years. "If Dani plays anywhere near her potential this year," coach Lunney said, "She should be an all-state catcher this year."

The rest of the roster hasn't been finalized, but the Rebels nine is starting to shape up for opening day.

Returning this year are junior Pam Bennett at first, senior Dawn Davis at second, senior Shilo Hutchins at third, senior Jen Bailey at short, junior Jen Percival in left field, senior Amy Hannon in center.

Senior Noel Gauthier will proba-

Opinions

Vote yes or no, but know what you're voting for Tonight's special town meeting votes on the former GAMM II property are likely to present Bethel voters with a challenge of understanding as well as of decision making.

The situation starts out murky enough—with the meaning of the first article subject to various interpretations, and the options for the town in the event the second passes still somewhat open.

And to complicate matters still further, there are likely to be amendments to either or both articles from the floor.

We strongly urge voters not only to attend tonight's meeting, but also to attend closely to the debate at the meeting. And not to be shy about asking for clarification if they're at all uncertain what it is they are being asked to vote for ... or against.

We would also urge that in whatever form the articles are ultimately put to the vote, that voters not tie the hands of Airport Industrial Committee and town officials by setting arbitrary conditions for the sale or financing of the property.

The GAMM II project was undertaken in good faith—and with some courage—in the legitimate interest of capitalizing on a unique chance to spur local economic growth. It is, as Rick Whitney points out below, a great deal—plain and simple. The downside risk is minuscule when set against the opportunity to start more paychecks and cash circulating through local households and businesses, and to add some badly needed diversification to the local economic base.

And the project is being managed by well-qualified people who are attempting to get the best possible deal—in the broadest sense—for the community.

We urge that voters give them a vote of confidence tonight, then allow them to get on with the job.

Letters to the Editor:

A UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY

To the Editor:

I am writing to express an opinion on one of the most controversial issues we as a town have encountered in many years—the purchase of the GAMM Building.

I am usually very much opposed to the government meddling in private business affairs. However, I think this may be a rather unique situation given the state of the economy and the valuable option we had on a nice piece of real estate.

After attending the town meeting at which we as a town voted to purchase the property it is my opinion that many townspeople and town officials as well felt the building was a safe investment and were willing to take matters into our own hands to help create new jobs in the area.

There is an excellent committee of concerned citizens which will advise selectmen as to the ultimate fate of the building. I feel certain that this committee will give equal consideration to all interested parties including the party against whom the option was exercised.

Ultimately, I believe the building is a safe investment and one way or another will eventually create new local jobs at no cost to the town.

On the bright side of the matter is the re-emergence of the Bethel Area Development Corp. Their absence during the boom years of the 1980s may not have been missed much but with the current economy and predictions for the 90s their rebirth may be of great benefit to the Bethel area.

NOT CONTACTED ON GAMM

To the Editor:

The minutes of the Bethel Airport Committee's March 20 1992 meeting state that a telephone call was made to me and that a registered letter was sent to me concerning the GAMM II property.

I wish to state categorically that no one from either the town or from the Airport Committee has ever spoken to me concerning the GAMM II property since I hand delivered a proposal to the committee in late February; nor have I ever received a registered letter from anybody concerning the GAMM II property.

I might go on to say that as the area's largest commercial real estate agency, Early Real Estate has never been consulted, asked, questioned, visited or anything else as to how to sell or lease that property.

Who's fooling who? And why?

WE'VE BEEN HAD

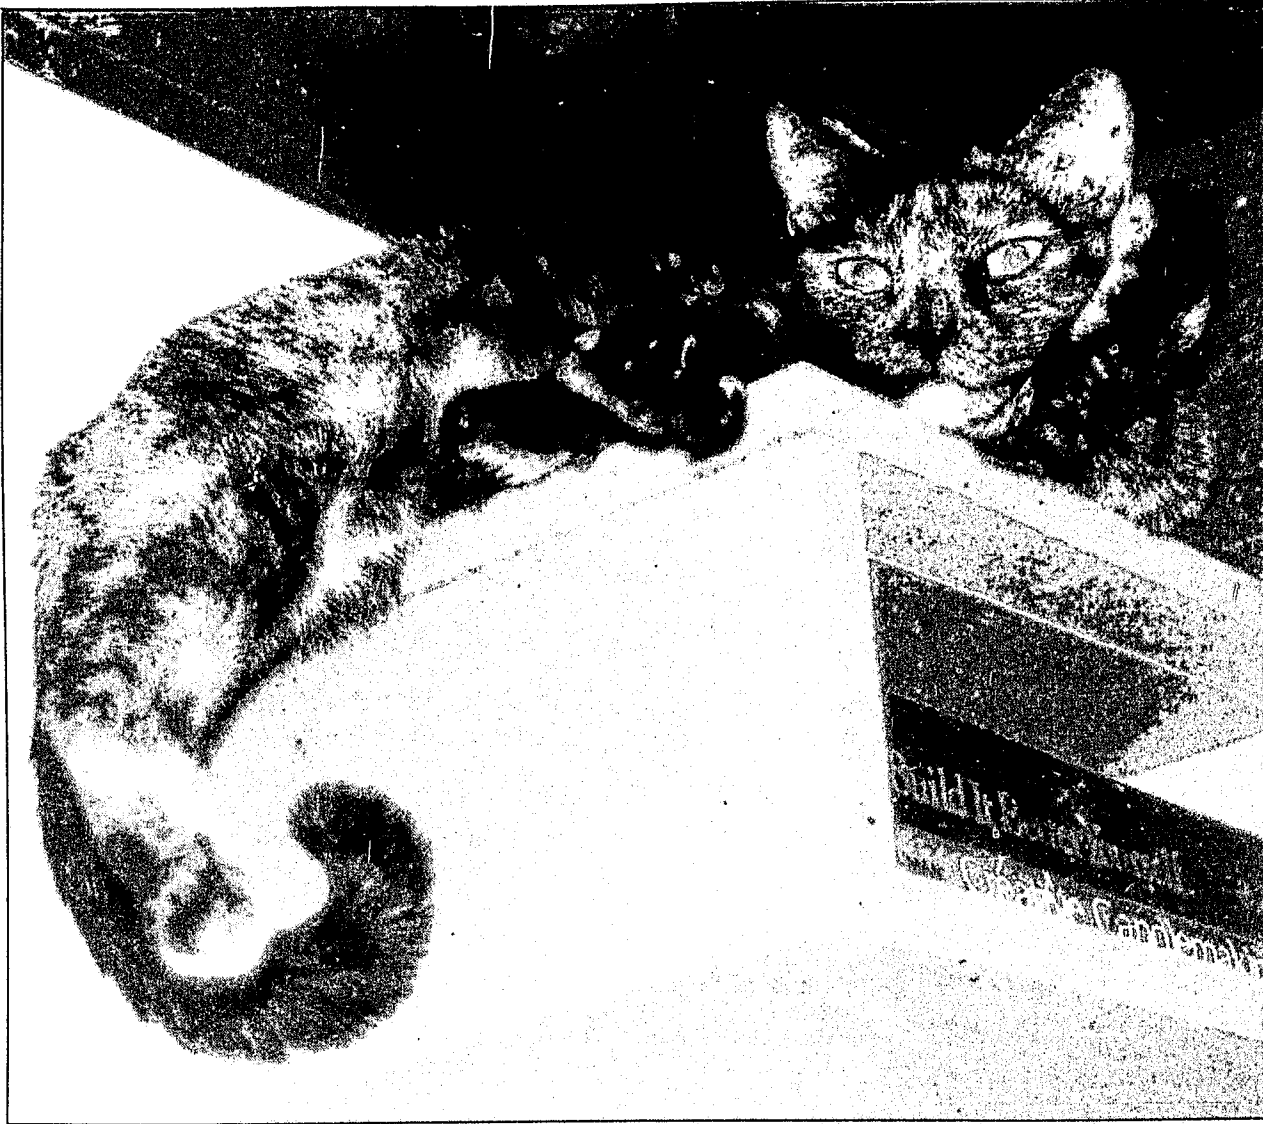

To the Editor:

As an individual taxpayer who made particular effort to sign the petition for the April 8 special town meeting, I feel like I've been had.

My understanding was that the article would be to direct the selectmen to sell the GAMM II building at the earliest opportunity. It seems the wording has now been construed to include the option to lease the building.

I would never have signed the petition in this case.

My sentiments lie firmly with those who would like to see full time employment opportunity increase in Bethel. However, I do not believe town governments should

GO TO THE MEETING

To the Editor:

I've been told that the GAMM II committee agrees that the building should be sold. This is encouraging—but we should still support Barb Brown and make it official by meeting at 7 p.m. April 8 to vote. In that way we can be certain the building will be sold.

REV. ELWIN WILSON

To the Editor:

Once more another valued member of the Bethel Historical Society has died. Rev. Elwin Wilson, born April 13, 1898, in Bethel, contributed his memories of the Northwest Bethel Road, which were published in the Society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier" in 1986. Rev. Wilson also collected his memories in a Grandfather's Book for his grandchildren. Fortunately he sent a copy to the Society from which the following is quoted:

Once we were driving a small herd of cattle to a distant pasture for the summer, since our local pasture was not sufficient for all of them. I had a pair of steer calves yoked together and walked alongside them so that they would not stray from the road. Joe Spofford, who was helping us, was looking after a pair of two year old's who also had been yoked together. This pair was not yet well-trained and Joe had a hard time controlling them. On the way we had to go thru the covered bridge near Bethel. Most of the cattle were afraid to enter the bridge, so father thought that if I could get my calves to enter first and then the large yoked pair that Joe was driving, the rest might enter. So without trouble I got my pair well into the bridge—perhaps half way thru—when Joe finally got his pair to come in. But when they finally entered they started to race full tilt through the narrow passage. I saw them coming and pressed my steers over against the right side to make room for them to pass, but they, partly because of the inconvenience of the yoke, also swung to our side of the bridge, struck us from behind, and almost literally ran over us and out of the bridge. It was a seeming miracle that none of us were hurt at all badly, but my knickers were torn all down the rear so that I was allowed to ride in the wagon which accompanied us at the back of the line until we came to Mr. Purington's general store where father purchased a new pair for me.

Rev. Wilson collected a multitude of memories in the book and we are indeed thankful that so much has been preserved, relating to an era that has all but disappeared.

I recall a great visit to Orono with Rev. Wilson and his wife Dorothy Clarke Wilson, the well-known writer. Rev. Wilson showed me his outstanding photos of farming at the Wilson farm in Northwest Bethel (now occupied by Don and Karen Bean) and I thoroughly enjoyed discussing what farm life was like in Bethel in the early years of this century. It was a pleasant time and I will never forget Rev. Wilson's kindness in sharing his memories of Bethel with me.

SCHOOL BUDGET TOO HIGH

To the Editor:

The proposed school budget, which will cost each town more than they paid last year, is totally unacceptable.

We want a good education for children but I wonder if we can accomplish this without such a high cost. Sometimes just throwing money at a problem does not solve it.

Mr. Murphy, in his recent letter points to two areas of expense that should be carefully looked at. The first is Adult Ed. As he says—the primary focus of the school system should be to teach children. His second area at expense is the cost of administration.

I feel the superintendent and most of the school board have misread the ability and willingness of people to be saddled with higher taxes. Give that budget another going over to get the extra $83,000 out, so there would be no tax increases.

Augusta's gilet gravy budget

By MIKE BROWN

Well, the Maine Legislature finally passed its gilet gravy budget and went home. Some legislators will probably never return—either by choice, vote or hanging.

Legislative leaders seem to operate on the "Garrison Finish" principle. It's an old horse racing expression. A jockey named Garrison made it his practice to hold his horse back until the last minute in order to come from behind to win. Substitute Jockey Garrison for Jockey Martin and you get the form.

But Maine race fans are politically savvy and they will cover their bets in this year's primary and general elections. The odds on incumbent jockey mounting up for 1993 season are l-o-n-g.

The Legislature can only be called resourceful when it comes to balancing budgets. The prime objective of the Second Session should have been finding a viable check to cover the $150 million FY'93 deficit and then go home.

But some 600 bills and resolves flooded the State House distracting the objective and adding clutter and expense to Maine government. And as the legislators debarked Augusta for the hinterlands, the Maine State government bureaucracy can only be labeled gigantism.

"Closing the budget gap" was like watching Washington crossing the Delaware. When the unanimous, bi-partisan appropriations committee recommended cutting state workers' salary by three hours and rowing home, there were some 60 ice floe amendments immediately calved from the legislative glacier.

The real question is not how many hours state workers work, it's how many workers it takes to make the work. Sort of like Peter Piper's pickled peppers.

Legislators should stop jerking state workers around. The executive and legislative branches of government know fully well that the state work force can be reduced by 25 percent and still maintain an acceptable level of state services for its citizens.

Then why not cut the workers by this number? But keep payroll and benefit promises. Except—never tell a state employee applicant that he has a job for life, as their unions do.

The legislature gave birth to many bond issues that have to be decided by voters this fall. Again, legislators pass the buck and the responsibility that they are elected to perform. This legislature also is breaking new bonding ground authorizing a "$42 million credit card" to the Department of Transportation.

The state will authorize this amount in bonds to be sold in anticipation of monies to be received from the federal government for four Maine DOT projects over the next several years—hopefully. (Trust Congress?) The bonds, however, will not pass public go. It's under-the-table bonding similar to the notorious Certificates of Participation ($38 million)—COP's—that have been slipped by the public.

And as Maine burned, the legislature fiddled with federal narcotic laws that make marijuana an illicit drug.

Despite the warnings from several legislators that "legalizing" pot in any way would be detrimental to Maine's health and safety, let alone illegal, the legislature passed a bill to "legalize marijuana for medicinal purposes."

This was a round win for the pot pushers like the Maine Vocals group who have been parading the state demanding credibility for "hemp."

The new law will not legalize marijuana, it merely suggests that it can be used as "an affirmative defense to the prosecution for possession of marijuana." The bill suggests that, with permission of a physician, a person suffering from chemotherapy or glaucoma can possess and use marijuana.

The proponents of the pot bill became very emotional, but with false rhetoric that pot was the smoking gun to relieve human suffering. They failed to respond to opponents who argued that illicit drugs like marijuana cause it.

The next checkpoint for incumbent legislators who wish to continue in the theme of their past record will be the June primary elections. That's when the State House moves to the public hustings for its biennial cleaning.

It is not true that we have only one life to live; if we can read, we can live as many more lives and kinds of lives as we wish.

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

"The Witches of Salem" was the featured subject at the April monthly meeting of the Bethel Historical Society held in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House.

More than 60 members and friends heard Dr. Ernest Cassara describe the conditions under which the witchcraft hysteria developed in Salem, Mass. in 1692, 300 years ago this year. Dr. Cassara outlined the medieval state of mind that fostered witchcraft, the role of the Mathers, and the nature of Puritanism.

Two Salem girls proclaimed they had been bewitched; many were accused; 20 were executed; 55 would eventually "confess." The whole affair lasted but a few months because some of the most important people in Salem were named and because the folly of the whole campaign was exposed resulting in a rapid change in public opinion.

Dr. Cassara indicated that there had been many theories concerning the nature of the hysteria and outlined several. One lasting influence was the fact that the Puritan clergy was greatly weakened by public reaction.

During the business portion of the meeting, President Jane Hosterman reported that she and Society Director Stanley R. Howe had attended a Maine Association of Museums, regional workshop at the Margaret Chase Smith Library in Skowhegan, which focused on collection care and handicapped accessibility.

The president announced that the next monthly meeting would be held on May 7 at Telstar Regional High School's Helen Berry Auditorium at 7 p.m. to see the pageant on Bethel's past by members of Crescent Park School's Grade Five Social Studies class.

The "Artifact of the Month" was announced by Society Curator of Collections Randall Bennett as an 1850 wall map of the Town of Waterford, given by Elizabeth Lord in memory of Leander Gage Stone and his wife Jane Warren Stone, Mrs. Lord's grandparents. The program was followed by a social hour featuring refreshments appropriate for the month of April announced by Persis Post.

I would also like to take a moment to thank the members of the Budget Committee for their time and attention to the affairs of the town. We had near perfect attendance at the meetings, and the atmosphere of cooperative problem solving was most helpful. In hard times, difficult decisions abound. Veterans Fair will offer job and business advice

Billed as a celebration of resources, the Veterans Economic Opportunity Fair on Saturday, April 11 at Central Maine Technical College at 1250 Turner Street in Auburn will make available to Central Maine veterans an abundance of information in one place.

The fair is organized as an informal people-to-people event where veterans can obtain information and assistance. The sponsors structured the event to include a series of practical hands-on workshops and seminars featuring experts in education, job search, starting and expanding a business and small business bank financing.

As a special attraction, organizers are pleased to offer a keynote presentation by David "Andy" Bangs, an author, publisher and business consultant.

For more information contact David Markovchick at the Finance Authority of Maine, 623-3263.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

I want to issue one last reminder of the Special Town Meeting at 7 p.m. at the high school this evening. The warrant includes such important items as the disposition of the Industrial Park Building, the adoption of the Floodplain Management Ordinance, and the authorization to accept the financing package for the Lower Main Street Project.

I would also like to take a moment to thank the members of the Budget Committee for their time and attention to the affairs of the town. We had near perfect attendance at the meetings, and the atmosphere of cooperative problem solving was most helpful. In hard times, difficult decisions abound. Please take a moment to congratulate yourselves for a job done well.

Now that the legislative session has ended, it would be wise to take a look at what effects the town will feel from this year's actions. As occurred last year, the state found it necessary to take money from the town to balance its own budget. Bethel's revenue sharing was decreased by over $20,000 in each of Fiscal Year 1992 and 1993. Of the money collected for registering neutered or spayed dogs, $1 more will go to the state, $1 less will stay in the town.

On the other hand, mandatory landfill closings were put off one the Guard used an averaging system, a system that a number of speakers termed unrealistic and misleading.

"The use of average noise levels is irrelevant in quiet settings," said Joyce Benson of the state Planning Office.

Robert Kimber of Temple said, "Human beings don't perceive average noise, they perceive individual noise events."

And Tracy Poland of the Maine State Grange said her own home is under a low-level training route, and when the planes come over her young children run screaming for their parents.

The Guard's noise analysis, she said, doesn't begin to take into consideration "the sheer fear experienced by my three children."

Maine's Congressional delegation also used the occasion of last week's meeting to restate its unanimous opposition to the Guard's plan.

The state's two senators and two representatives all sent spokesmen who read prepared statements attacking the plan.

In a statement read by Eric House, Sen. William Cohen said: "There is no doubt in my mind that the introduction of thousands of high-speed, low-level military aircraft will reduce this beautiful vacationland to a wasteland."

Some supporters

But not everyone was convinced the plan would be a disaster. While all the speakers at the Presque Isle meeting opposed the plan, at the Mexico meeting three of the 29 people who spoke did so in favor of the plan.

"I can't believe these overflights are really going to affect tourism," said Lincoln Fiske of Bethel.

Robert Fulsom of Upton said he has seen only four overflights in eight years in the area, "and I can live with that."

Noting that he has personally

STF. SGT. KAULBACK RE-UPS

benefited from medical advances based on military research, he said: "I'm quite willing to accept any and all adverse and beneficial effects from my decision to coexist with the military."

And David Clukey of Bryant Pond told of being awed by low flights over Bryant Pond when he was a youngster: As a child I loved it; and as a child I still do," he said.

Fliers face less flak

The tone of last week's meeting was considerably less hostile than a similar meeting last July, when nearly twice as many residents turned out to blast the plan, and the military's apparent inability or unwillingness to police its current use of the airspace.

Since then, however, the military has made a well publicized and, in the view of many, largely successful effort to prevent violations such as buzzing incidents and planes flying too close to homes.

A number of speakers acknowledged that the situation had vastly improved in recent months, but some questioned whether the improvement would last once the Guard was no longer in the public eye—and once residents no longer had the hearings as forums for venting their frustration.

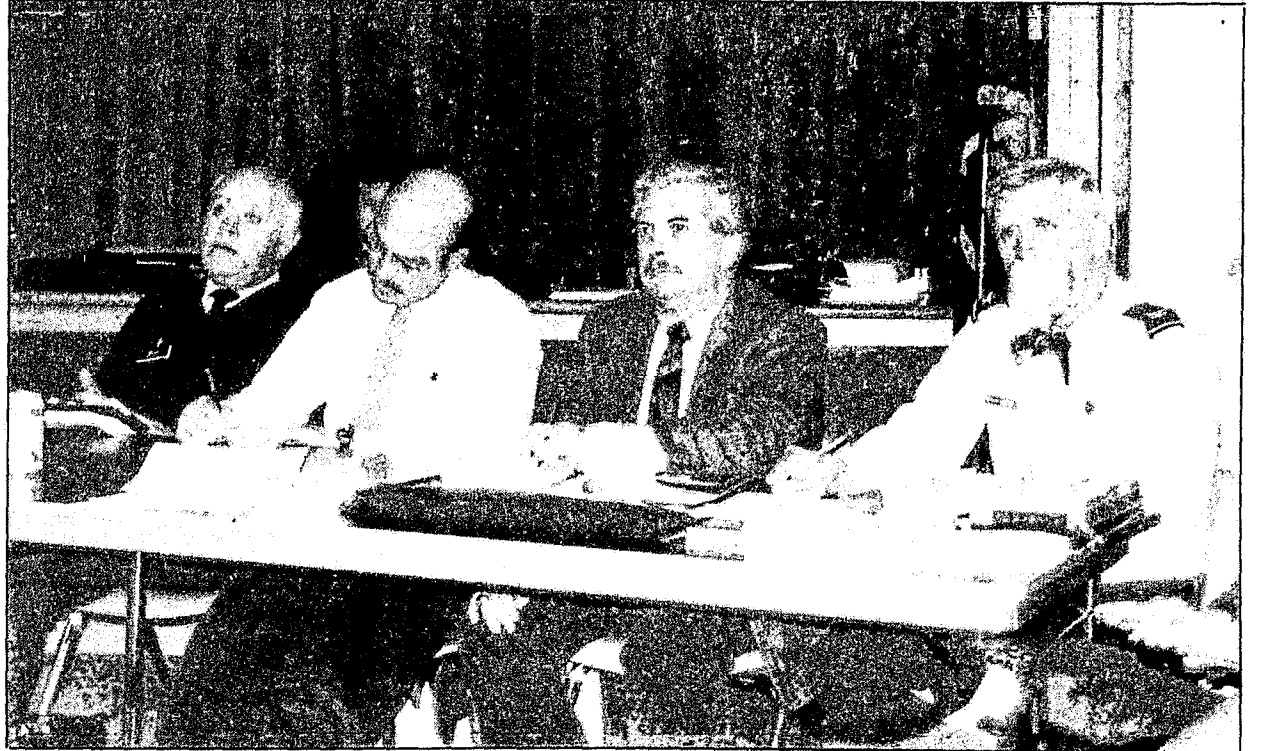

"People aren't quite so raw and angry as they were earlier," said Evelyn DeFrees of the Natural Resources Council of Maine, "but who knows what will happen when whatever is being unleashed is finally unleashed."

Paul Lowe, executive director of the Western Mountains Alliance praised the improvements but noted that "The only time steps were taken to improve management was in the wake of this announcement."

Decision expected this summer

The National Guard Bureau is expected to recommend by this summer whether to go ahead with the plan. The final decision will be made by the Secretary of the Air Force.

NO RESPONSE—National Guard officers and their consultants were silent as speaker after speaker attacked the Guard's overflight plan. Guard officials promised written answers to the questions raised by residents at last week's meeting.

STOCK YOUR POND

Within the past several years, the number of privately owned ponds in Maine has grown by leaps and bounds. Good backyard trout fishing can be yours as a pond owner.

Most farm ponds require periodic stocking to provide good fishing. If a pond owner wishes to have fast fishing for 8-10 inch trout, he should stock the pond on an annual basis. If he will settle for a slower fishing for larger trout, he should stock on an alternate year basis.

The Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District is ready for your pond stocking orders. A variety of brook, rainbow and brown trout are available. All orders must be placed by Friday, April 6. Pick up day is Thursday, May 1 from noon to 2 p.m. at the District Office, One Main St., South Paris.

Interested persons are encouraged to contact the Oxford County SWCD at 743-7019 between 9 to 11 a.m., stop by the Office, or write to Oxford County SWCD, One Main St., South Paris 04281.

Bethel budget

Department of Public Works uses one.

Both the backhoe and the second police cruiser would have been paid for out of reserve accounts.

The budget proposal will go to voters at town meeting in June. The $1,111,692 figure for municipal expenses makes up roughly half of the total appropriation, with the balance going to school and county taxes.

Trash

Selectman Arlan Jodrey said some residents abused the privilege of the pick-up service, piling whole truck loads of "stuff" on the curbside.

"It shouldn't be the obligation of the general taxpayer to pay for that," Jodrey said. "Really, I don't think we should be in the business of picking up people's trash."

Bethel Town Clerk Merton Brown pointed out that while some residents in town may have taken advantage of the free pick-up, the service had worked in the past to clean up "some real eyesores."

"It's tough to regulate that sort of thing. The town has no ability to get at problems like that," Brown said.

Selectman Norm Putnam said the problem with providing the service again this year would revolve around the availability of the road crew and their equipment.

"Money isn't the critical problem, it's the personnel and the trucks," Putnam said.

Sensing a split among the five board members, Selectman Henry Dombkowski suggested putting the question before the voters at the annual town meeting June 10.

Jodrey quickly rejected the idea, saying, "The board needs to stand up and make some of these decisions--that's why we're here."

Finally, with the exception of Selectman Arthur Gilbert who abstained, the board voted to discontinue the spring pick-up service.

"It's a service we've been providing for a long time and I don't think (the road crew) is all that rushed that they couldn't do it, said Gilbert, explaining his decision to abstain.

Also Monday, on a related matter, the board authorized Town Manager Madeleine Henley to discuss with Oxford County Sheriff Lloyd "Skip" Herrick, the possibility of recruiting three prisoners to do assorted spring cleanup jobs around town.

"These aren't hardened criminals or murderers. We could give them a push-broom and have them shovel sand," Henley said, noting that the Town of Buckfield had recently recruited 18 prisoners to perform similar tasks.

The selectmen instructed Henley to proceed with recruiting prisoners for spring clean-up.

Also Monday, the board met with Don Feeney, a representative of the P.H. Chadbourne & Co. lumber mill, to discuss the posting of roads.

Feeney said the soil composition of a number of local roads, particularly the Northwest Bethel Road, Vernon Street and the Middle Intervale Road, made posting unnecessary.

"These roads are composed primarily of glacial soils which drain well," Feeney said. On roads which don't drain so well, we try to do our work early morning or in the evening."

Selectmen Dombkowski and Putnam acknowledged Chadbourne's attempts to preserve the roads, but expressed concern that others in town might not be so careful.

"Granted, (Chadbourne) has acted reasonably, but what assurance does the town have that everybody else will do the same?" asked Putnam.

Agreeing that the time had past this season to take up the issue, the board scheduled a workshop session for its first meeting in October to further consider the matter of posting roads.

For the past 10 years the town of Bethel has not posted roads during the spring mud season.

Also Monday, the board rejected a funding request from the Safer Families Program (SFP), a Bethel-based support service providing legal advocacy for the victims of domestic violence.

Addressing the board, SFP coordinator Lynn Mason said her program, which serves western Oxford County, had 19 open cases in Bethel and 10 in other SAD #44 communities.

In denying Mason's request for $250, the selectmen expressed and accepted at the budget workshop with no discussion.

In a memo passed out before Thursday's workshop, Craig wrote that the reason the administrators were recommending the increase was: "When contract issues are left unsettled they can lead to a negative effect upon present programs. When the morale of the staff is low, it can affect student learning."

John Brown, chairman of the negotiations committee said no contracts have been settled yet, but that the increase was "realistic at this point."

The budget for the coming year also included more state funding that the district was expecting.

SAD #44 received notice last week that the district will probably receive $66,339 more from the state than administrators thought they would when the budget building process began.

The state budget that Gov. McKernan signed last week included a provision to fund school districts in FY '93 at the FY '92 level.

strong support for the program, but said they had already decided against funding any new requests from social service organizations.

As part of their proposed 1993 budget package, the board has also reduced funding for all existing social service agencies by 10 percent.

Finally, without discussion, the board acknowledged receipt of a letter from Audrey Sundman, the owner of Skidder's Deli.

Sundman, who currently occupies a portion of the first floor in the former Edelwiess building in downtown Bethel, is planning to move her business to a property on lower Main Street owned by Gary and Dorothy York.

Sandman and the two other businesses in the Edelwiess building have been instructed by the building's new owner, Richard Keenan, to relocate before the end of May.

Joining Sundman at the new lower Main Street location will be the owner of one of the other businesses forced out, The Wood 'N Glass Gallery, owned by Maureen Ginter.

Sundman's letter to the board does not indicate when either business might reopen at the location.

Sundman said she plans to present her application to the planning board Thursday.

(The planning board's regular meeting was moved to Thursday, April 9, so that it would not conflict with tonight's special town meeting.)

Superintendent Dewaine Craig also notified the board that he was overstaffed one elementary teacher and one high school social studies teacher.

The two positions were vacated by teachers leaving the district, Craig said.

The board accepted Craig's proposal to eliminate the two positions, at a savings of $52,000.

The directors also increased the Telstar librarian position from part-time to full-time to help insure the school's recertification by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

Programs which administrators discussed eliminating but which were ultimately spared include elementary, middle and high school music and three library staff positions.

The administration had also proposed dropping four elementary teachers.

Three teaching positions would have been eliminated at the Andover Elementary School with the implementation of the Andover 2000 program.

Craig said by keeping all but one elementary teacher, the board nullified the need for the plan.

The board was scheduled to vote on the plan at its next regular meeting. But as a result of Thursday's vote, Andover director Brad Thibodeau retracted his request to have the issue placed on the April 13 agenda.

"Andover 2000 is probably a good educational proposal," Bethel director Merton Brown said, "but it's wrong, wrong, wrong for Andover. It was not accepted by the parents or staff and probably that would have reflected in the students' attitude."

The board is scheduled to vote on the proposed budget on April 13. If the budget is approved it will go to a district-wide vote at the annual district budget hearing scheduled for May 28.

If district voters approve the budget, the local assessment will increase by $83,221 or 2.67 percent.

That increase will likely be shared equally by the five member towns.

"The municipal assessment will probably be based on last year's state evaluation rather than the new evaluation," said administrative assistant Bruce Powell. "What that means is that any increase in the municipal assessment would be shared equally by each town."

Final figures for what each town will be asked to pay are not available yet, Powell said.

Ed Butters is new greens superintendent at Bethel Inn

The Bethel Inn & Country Club in Bethel has promoted Ed Butters to greens superintendent.

Ed Butters, a Maine native, has been the assistant superintendent at The Bethel Inn & Country Club for the past five seasons.

"We've come a long way since our days are a nine-hole course," Butters said. "Being a part of the course development and seeing the new 18-hole tract mature has made it a rewarding experience."

The new 18-hole 6,663 yard Geoffrey Cornish-designed layout is beginning its fourth full season. The Inn has hosted The State of Maine Championship and is now host to the New England Professional Golfers' of America Fall Pro Am Festival Sept. 7 through 10.

"With the addition of our new golf school and expanded tournament schedule, we'll always be pressed to have the course in top shape," said Butters. "But our off-season investment in new equipment and fall 1991 overseeding, should start paying us dividends early this spring."

Ed Butters came to The Bethel Inn & Country Club from the Royal Palm Beach Country Club in Florida where he worked during the early 1980's and Norway Country Club in Norway where he began his career in golf in 1978.

Allen Connors, director of golf at

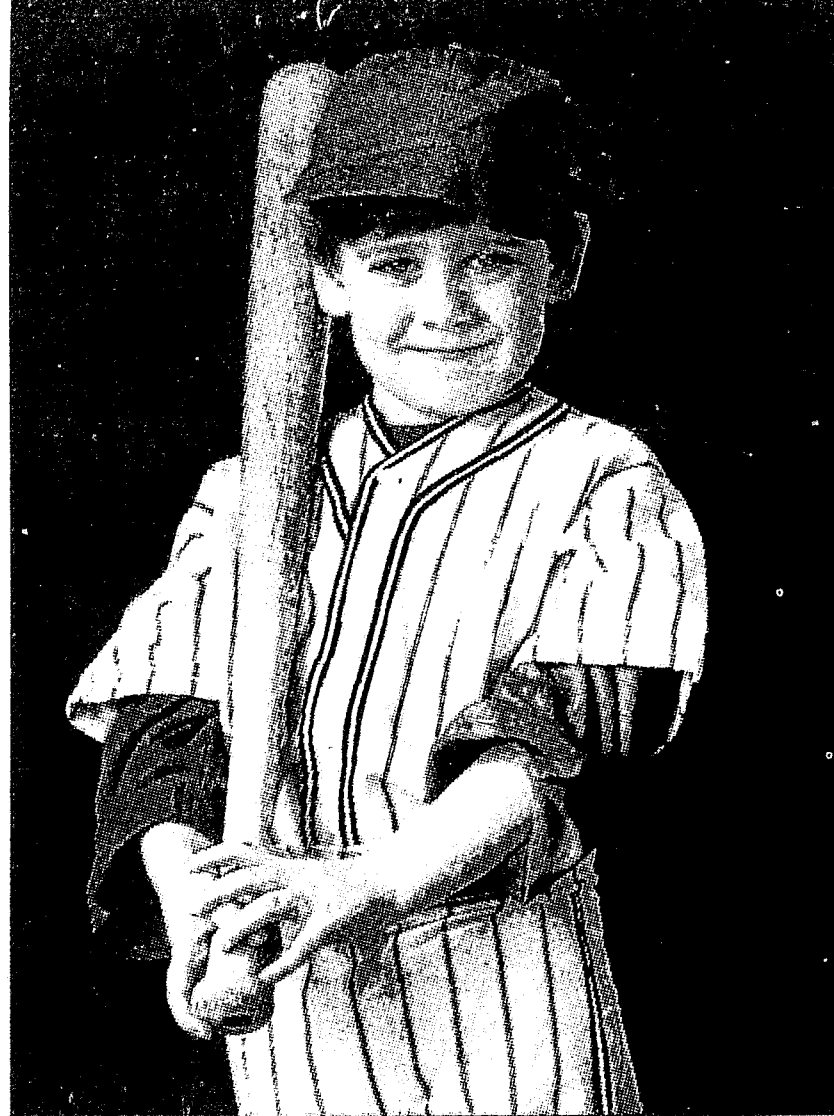

The Bethel Inn said "Ed's involvement with the course construction and knowledge of the game of golf make him the perfect man for the job."

restrictive state shoreland rules.

Prior to the new ordinance being adopted last year, a number of residents complained that it showed too much land as being in the floodplain--and thus unnecessarily imposed more-restrictive building regulations on land that was not really in the floodplain.

Rudolf Honkala, a professional geologist from Bethel, termed the maps a "gross miscalculation."

But faced with being forced out of the Federal Flood Insurance Program, and of being ineligible for federal aid in the event of serious flood damage, voters reluctantly adopted the new regulations for a year, in the hope that in that time FEMA would come up with more accurate elevations.

By MARTA CLEMENTS

Spring activities have begun. The month of April will be finding lots of children participating in a Read-A-Thon to raise money for the RIF program. McDonald's is assisting again this year by awarding prizes to all who read at least five books and raise $5. Be on the watch for our readers.

The Athletic Boosters have started field hockey for girls in grades 4, 5, and 6 here at West Paris. If enough sign up, field hockey will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays for the months of April and May. Sounds like fun.

It may not have been a sign of spring, but children in West Paris had a day off this past week due to a town water problem, a broken water pipe. Teachers reported to work as usual to do some committee work and to work in their classrooms. All was back to normal by late afternoon, and the children were back in school on Tuesday.

Kindergartners have made fluffy lambs to celebrate March going out like a lamb. For story time, Mrs. Howes is reading an adventure story about a duck, Drakestail. For math the children have all made spiders, and using the silk thread they swing the spiders to and fro while counting. They are learning to count by 2s and by 10s up to 100. They are still practicing counting backwards from 10 to 0. They have been working on the letter V and are making the V, v, out of pretzels.

The first-graders are being introduced to their first dictionary, "My Picture Dictionary" from Scott Foresman Co. They are learning how items are classified by topics in a picture dictionary. This one contains about 10 topics such as: people, animals, opposites and storybook characters. They are reading several versions of The Three Little Pigs and comparing the likes and differences of the stories.

They are finishing up their CAP unit by talking about the different kinds of families. Volunteer, Mrs. Alexander, is coming in to introduce the computer printer to the children. They will be making posters which will include each child's name and a graphic, or picture, that represents something about the child.

The second-graders celebrated their study of dinosaurs with a parade, party, stories and poems. Jason Emery recited his poem to his brother's fifth-grade class. Benjamin Blake did also. In math they finished up measuring their dinosaurs and got back to their study of arrays, the beginning step in multiplication. In spelling they are working with the sound of ow and ou, Brown Mouse words. The wall card used to remind them of the sound is a picture of a hurt thumb. Ow. Ouch. The students of the week are Ryan Beebe, Krystal Farris, Jamie Foster, and Joey Hakala.

Mr. Burke is reading a favorite, "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory," to his class. In spelling they are learning the VCCV, vowel, consonant, consonant, vowel, rule. In math they are learning to tell time, as well as work with addition facts. In science they are continuing with the "movement" theme and are working with wheels, axles and pul-restrictive state shoreland rules.

Prior to the new ordinance being adopted last year, a number of residents complained that it showed too much land as being in the floodplain—and thus unnecessarily imposed more-restrictive building regulations on land that was not really in the floodplain.

Rudolf Honkala, a professional geologist from Bethel, termed the maps a "gross miscalculation."

But faced with being forced out of the Federal Flood Insurance Program, and of being ineligible for federal aid in the event of serious flood damage, voters reluctantly adopted the new regulations for a year, in the hope that in that time FEMA would come up with more accurate elevations.

But the agency has not come up with new maps, and voters are once again faced with the choice of either accepting the over-restrictive regulations or of losing federal insurance and disaster aid.

Selectmen are recommending that the ordinance be extended until July 1 of 1993, in order to avoid the necessity for another special town meeting in April of next year.

The final article on the warrant for tonight's meeting would authorize the town to accept the loan and grant funds to complete the Lower Main Street phase of the Downtown Revitalization Project. The loan is to be repaid by users or the sewer system.

The Lower Main Street phase of the revitalization project is scheduled for this year.

The revitalization project is the result of a consent agreement between the town and the state Department of Environmental Protection. The work called for in the agreement is intended to eliminate the overflow of the towns sewage into the Androscoggin River.

Kimberly York of Bryant Pond has been named to the Dean's List at Johnson & Wales University for academic achievement during the winter trimester. To receive Dean's List commendation, students must earn a cumulative point average of 3.40 or above.

He is a member of the Crooked River Lodge AF & AM No. 152, the Kora Temple, the Harrison Lions Club and is the Director of the Oxford County Agricultural Society. East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Monday night, March 30 the Stoneham volunteer firemen met for their monthly meeting with about 12 members attending. They voted to have the firemen's supper on May 9 at 6:30 p.m. at the Stoneham Fire Station with turkey and roast beef on the menu. This is what they call the booster club supper which is put on by the firemen.

Paul Taylor visited his Aunt Gladys Kilgore this past weekend and did some repair work around the house.

Frank Vail, Jr. went to Maine Medical Center in Portland one day last week for tests. His son, Frankie Vail, the storekeeper, remains ill at his home and is unable to be at his store.

Phyllis Adams left last Wednesday to go to Massachusetts for a few days. Thelma Dammun has been working for Grace Nelson this week. Dwight Grover has recently gotten a new Dodge pick-up truck.

Danny Rolfe is applying for admission to the Maine Criminal Justice Academy in Waterville this summer and would like to be a constable for the town. He is to go to Alaska for two weeks and when he comes back, he will make further plans on this.

Selectmen have been told that according to the Oxford County commissioners office, Oxford County has been deemed as a disaster area and is eligible for federal money loaned at reduced rates.

Road commissioner, Carlton

Barth will seek reelection

Rep. Alvin L. Barth Jr., R-Bethel, has announced that he intends to seek reelection to House District 49.

Barth, who is completing his first term in the Legislature, said he plans to continue to be an experienced voice for western Maine.

"A strong economy must be one of our highest long-term priorities," said Barth. "To achieve this, we must improve Maine's business climate by revamping the workers' compensation system and changing the focus of the Department of Environmental Protection to better serve the people it is intended to serve. Through cooperation, the DEP can help businesses, individuals and developers meet Maine's strict environmental laws. Business can flourish in Maine without taking anything away from the state's natural resources. Hand-in-hand with these changes, we must have the best educational system with accountability at all levels that we can afford," Barth added.

"During the 115th Legislature, we started the process of reducing the size of government to a level that Maine people can't afford. It is long process and one that no one expects will be quickly solved," he said. "But we have nonetheless gotten the wheels rolling. I will continue to push for reorganizing and downsizing."

Barth, who spent 28 years as a teacher and administrator at Gould Academy, where he received his high school education, serves on the Legislature's Joint Standing Committee on Education. He is a volunteer instructor with the Maine Handicapped Skiing Program at Sunday River Ski Resort, a teacher of Maine geology for Elderhostel and a former member of the MSAD #44 Board of Directors.

He is a past president and former director of water quality monitoring with the Lakes Association of Norway and a past president of the National Association of Geology Teachers, New England Section. He has served as Cub Scout Master for Pack 566 in Bethel and is a lifetime member of the Bethel Historical Society. Barth also belongs to the Small Woodlot Owners Association of Maine and the American Tree Farm Program.

He is currently the vice chairman of the American Diabetes Association Maine Affiliate and board member and secretary of the Maine Conservation Education Foundation of Maine and the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond.

During the 1970s, he spent two years in Melbourne, Australia as the recipient of an International Teaching Fellowship.

In addition, Barth belongs to the Bethel Rotary Club, the Christ Episcopal Church in Norway, the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine and the National Rifle Association. He is a past master of the Bethel Lodge #97 A.F. and A.M.

He lives on the Grover Hill Road in Bethel with his wife, Lee. He has two children, Bruce and Karl, and two stepchildren, Marcy and Todd.

Towns eligible for flood aid

Due to flood damage in early March, President Bush recently declared Oxford County a disaster area, which will make federal and state funds available for repairs.

Damage from the rains on March 10 and 11 in Oxford County is estimated at $392,000 and $902,000 statewide so far.

The disaster relief program stipulates 75 percent reimbursement by the federal government and 25 percent by the state government for repair expenses.

The Federal Emergency management Agency estimates that Bethel may be eligible for up to $15,000, Greenwood, $5,000; West Paris, $2,000 and Woodstock, $1,000.

The towns can apply for the money following an inspection by federal evaluators

Highway deaths for 1991 go down

Maine closed out 1991 with 205 highway fatalities, well below the five year average of 221 and 1990's figure of 213. Richard E. Perkins, director of the Bureau of Highway Safety, attributed the drop in part to the ailing economy. "In poor economic times, people tend to travel less miles which results in fewer fatal crashes," he said.

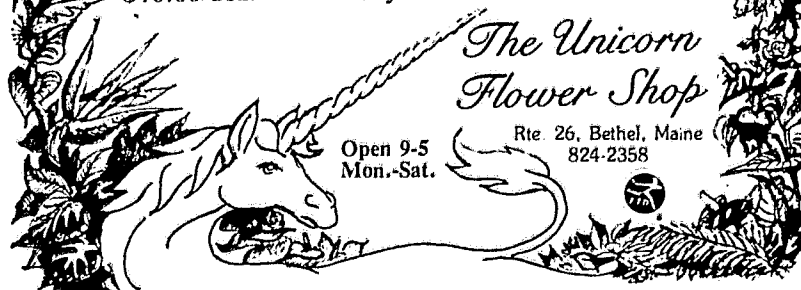

The Bureau reported 35.6 percent of the deaths involved alcohol, but indicated this figure may change as more information becomes available. The five-year average for alcohol involvement is 41.25 percent.

Of the 159 who died in passenger vehicles, only 36 (22.6 percent) were buckled up. "People are still being killed on our highways because they didn't take the three seconds needed to buckle up," said Perkins. "Many people don't realize that your chances of serious injury or death are reduced significantly if you wear a safety belt."

The annual report went on to state that eight of the victims were pedestrians, one a bicyclist, 29 motorcyclists, three ATV riders, one a farm tractor rider, and four snowmobile riders.

What a rain fall we have had. It looked like we had a river running down our back yard. We got some snow but it didn't last too long and I'm thankful for that.

I went to the doctors on Tuesday. Also, I went twice for therapy last week. Went to Tri-County on Friday after being at the therapist and also to groceries. Russell and Peggy have been places this week. I have worked on puzzles to try to keep busy.

Called Mary Lovejoy and she hadn't heard about the school being out at West Paris due to a problem with the water.

Mary's friend, Marsha, was in visiting at different times this week helping Mary. Any small item like that helps make the day shorter and more pleasant.

Tammy Farnum stopped in one day last week to visit Mary and family. I believe she said that Kathleen Holden stopped in to visit one day also. Maybe she went to Bethel for a while with Mary. They are good friends and go places together at times.

Take care one and all and I hope everyone has a good week ahead and stays healthy.

Thanks to those who did work in and around the museum building this winter.

Robert Morin of Berlin, N.H. will present a program on wood carving at the Society's April meeting.

My Wednesday visitors were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews, Bridgton, Alfred Bernier, Esther Davis.

Mr. Bernier is the hearing aid attendant. He comes around periodically to check your hearing aids and to keep you happy with them, and to correct them if anything is wrong.

Esther Davis was in Jay on Wednesday attending visiting hours of a sister-in-law, Methyl Brown. She also called on her sisters over in that vicinity before coming home.

Esther and Olive Davis called on Mary Billings on Thursday morning. Thank you Althea Fish for the nice card Surprised?

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

Lorraine Mills visited Sandy Nash in Dixfield on Wednesday. Sandy has been pretty ill with some kind of virus for over a week. Guess colds and "flus" are all over as Marcia and Jon Smith both have been having them and say that upstate just about everyone else is also.

Well, daylight savings time is upon us once more and I hate it with a passion. Most people mind the switch over. That doesn't bother me particularly but I just don't like the time itself. No matter what the clock says my body says "standard time" -- "standard time"...I may follow the clock but my body doesn't, but come to think of it, it doesn't like to do much of what I tell it to anyway so I guess this is no worse than anything else.

Jim and Linda Ryan, Benjamin and Nick, have returned home after spending a few days at her parent's home on Howe Hill. Her parents, Val and Caroline Greene of Massachusetts were here over the weekend. That must be a tiring drive for just a weekend but notice that a lot of skiers have been coming up from Connecticut and Rhode Island lately. Now that has got to be dedication beyond belief.

I think I will have to get some copies of last week's Citizen and send them to Ralph for distribution. He says his friends have always enjoyed the country flavor of the paper and I'm sure the April Fool's article on the Riley Town Meeting would suck in quite a few of his cronies. John says if only that was the way it was in Riley Township he'd be tempted to move there, they sound like his kind of people. I, on the other hand, figure we don't have to move because I see altogether too many resemblances to ourselves and people we know already in the article, which is why, I guess, I find people fascinating, exasperating, irritating and unpredictable on one hand and loving, caring, kind, and capable of great achievement on the other. In short I just enjoy people and the complexities of their characters never cease to astound me.

Our daughter, Marcia, is presently in Houlton taking care of her mother-in-law, Pat Smith, who has congestive heart failure. They are giving up their rent in Presque Isle and moving in with Pat and husband for a while until some other arrangements for Pat can be made or Clair retires whichever comes first. It will be a long commute for Jon. Marcia has been caring for their great nephew Nate, for the past three months because his mother has not been able to but he's gone back home for a while on a trial basis to see if she's well enough to cope.

Charlotte Cole has been ill with this virus and says it has slowed up her "go" shoes considerably. She is due to receive a volunteer award from Ledgeview on April 16 and hopes she will be well enough to go.

The Ladies Circle will meet at the Sunday School room of the Locke Mills Church at 1:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 15.

Well, as you can see this column has been filled with a lot of chit-chat and not much news. If you would like to remedy that be sure to call. If we are not here leave a message. I realize no one (except maybe me who had rather leave a message than have to remember to call back) likes to use the answering machines but considering the price we had to pay for the thing it would be nice to feel we'd gotten our money's worth.

Spring time came on March 20 with the sun in the sign of Aries, a "fire" sign. It was zero degrees at my house at 6:20 a.m. where was the heat from the "fire"?

Karlene Bachelder, Sylvia Wight, Brenda Wight, Nancy Wight and Eleanor Davis ventured out last Saturday morning, March 25, in a snow storm to go to Boston for the flower show. I wonder if any of them wore their boots?

Services were held at the residence of Owen and Sue Wight Sunday, March 22 with Pastor Rodney Hanscom officiating and daughter, Nancy, at the organ. The message of the day was "Right or Wrong". From Genesis 28:10-22, Acts 9:1-9 and St. Luke 15:11-32, and "Words of Assurance from Psalm 25:10-13, Forgiveness gives Peace of Mind." Coffee was enjoyed later. There will be one more last service at the Wight's next Sunday, March 29. On following Sundays the Newry Community Church will be open for regular services at 9 a.m.

crackle of hay, the stamp of horses and the lowing of cattle marked the passage of time.

At milking time, the milker perched on a three-legged stool and produced jets of warm milk rattling off the bottom of his pail until it began to fill. Of course this was hand milking. Usually there was a barn cat near by silently begging. If spoken to, the cat rose onto his hind legs and received a stream of milk straight into its mouth.

The hay had been cut and dried in the summer. It had been done in an old-fashioned way. The farmer cut the hay down with a horse-drawn mowing machine. At an earlier time hay was cut with the hand scythe. A line of men stepped off one after another, swinging their scythes in about eight foot arcs. Each man's cut lay the grass pointing in the same direction, which was called a swath. It was left to melt in the sun. When dry, it was shaken out, turned bottom side up and then speedily dried. The farmer then used a dump rake drawn by a horse. A foot pedal raised the rake's spring tines so that the field was left with even lines of fluffy hay. There was also a bull rake used to clean up hay scatterings left by the dump rake. I remember using one of those.

After the hay was pitched into haycocks, it was then ready to load into a hayrack, a wagon which had low rails fixed along the sides. A man was in it to build a load of hay. He took each forkful, pitched up by men on the ground. It was placed in such a way that it locked the load together, as it was built. Some never could learn the art of doing that part.

Haying was a time of intense hard work. When hauled into the barn the hay was pitched by hand on to a floor above the tie-ups and down into deep bays on the opposite side of the barn. When the mows were filled the men pitched upward stacking the hay clear to the eaves. This was heavy work in the hot dusty immensity at the top of a barn.

Just as the kitchen was the heart of the house, where the women worked hard, too, the barn was the focus of the farm.

Each year when the haying came to an end, and each day when chores ended there was a sigh of relief from all hands. The family had formed a constellation of hard work and fascinating activity, now finished.

Much of my life has been in some way connected with a farm; therefore I have seen many changes and experienced many of them.

John and Dot Betts were in North Conway for a couple of days, early in the week.

My furnace had trouble on Saturday but with the help of my good neighbors and a plumber, it was repaired.

After church on Sunday I joined the family at the farm. David and family and Ann were there. Little Lisa Piccirillo and her father visited. She is just beginning to walk.

I was at the hospital a couple of times this week to visit a friend.

Three Generations of Cephalosporins

One of the most commonly prescribed families or categories of antibiotic medicines is referred to as the "cephalosporins." Currently there are between 15 and 20 cephalosporins on the market in the United States, and more are on the way. These effective infection-fighters are grouped into "generations" for convenience in classifying their ranges of activity. For example, first generation cephalosporins, which include cefazolin, cephalothin and others, have good bacteria killing activity against organisms referred to as the gram positive cocci bacteria (examples include streptococcus and staphylococcus) and a few gram negative bacteria.

The second generation of cephalosporins are usually effective against the same bacteria that the first generation cephalosporins are effective against plus Haemophilus, Enterobacter, and Neisseria bacteria. Examples of second generation cephalosporins include cefaclor and cefuroxime.

Third generation cephalosporins such as cefixime are effective against most of the gram negative organisms. In order to know which cephalosporin antibiotic to use, physicians routinely order culture and sensitivity tests. According to a recent issue of Postgraduate Medicine, researchers are planning for fourth and fifth generation cephalosporins.

Sen. Don Twitchell quits in disgust

By MILTON GROSS

State Sen. R. Donald Twitchell, 62, said he wants to enjoy the rest of his life so he's leaving Augusta because the past year of getting spit at and booed have been the worst of his 19 years there.

"After going through four governors and many-filled prescriptions of blood-pressure pills and a crop of gray hair, it's time to step back," Twitchell said. "I am burned out, and I'd like to see what the flowers smell like."

The District 15 senator cited a deteriorating attitude in Augusta, including senators being spit at, and said he wants to enjoy private life again.

Until five or six years ago, explained Twitchell, legislators, senators and others in state government fought for their views when necessary, "but everybody was nice about it."

"It was altogether different. Everybody was one happy family," commented the veteran politician.

Extreme anger by those who espoused causes last year marked what Twitchell described as the most unpleasant days he remembers in his nine years in the House and a decade in the Senate.

At that time, Twitchell said, senators had to be escorted to and from the senate chamber by state police when the halls were filled with special interest groups during the height of the budget crisis.

"They were booing us, slapping us, spitting on us," Twitchell recalled. "That is the worst of times. People are turned off by politics in general and politicians in particular," he said.

"The public at times has asked their elected officials to do the impossible, and, unfortunately, some of us have been dumb enough to try it," he commented.

"Our legislators are not taking the tough stands. They're afraid to do it because they won't get reelected," he remarked.

Twitchell also expressed cynicism toward bureaucrats in state government.

"The government hires more bureaucrats who really don't do anything, except they do studies and issue reports that prove that we need more studies and reports," he said.

"When I was a kid," the Norway senator commented, "people aspired to become elected officials. People thought they were someone to look up to. But that's not the case any more."

"I can tell you lots of stories, and they will tell the tale of a democracy grinding down and grinding up good people," he said.

"I want to thank all the people who have stood behind me all these years," he said.

Commenting on his plans to return to private life next winter after his successor takes over, the former Norway store owner said, "I am 62 years of age. I've got a few good years left, and how I want to spend them certainly won't be in Augusta."

Twitchell, who began his service in the 106th legislative session, has been known in the Oxford Hills for his help to individual constituents and for support for the elderly. As chairman of the legislative Transportation Committee he has been instrumental in bringing Maine Department of Transportation funds to Route 26 and other road projects.

Republican Representative Dana Hanley of Paris, and Democrat James Wilfong of Stow are vying for Twitchell's seat. Twitchell is serving as Wilfong's campaign chairman.

District 15 includes the Oxford County towns of Brownfield, Buckfield, Denmark, Fryeburg, Greenwood, Hartford, Hebron, Hiram, Lovell, Norway, Otisfield, Oxford, Paris, Peru, Stoneham, Stow, Sweden, Sumner, Waterford, West Paris, Woodstock and the unorganized territory of South Oxford; and the Cumberland County towns of Bridgton and Harrison.

Rebel softball

bly play in right. She returns to softball after two years on the track team.

Juniors Mae Lynn Patten and Susann Richardson are back for another year and should give the infield some depth to call on, Lunney said.

Newcomers this year include juniors Faye Luxton, infielder; Dawn Eliot, infielder or outfielder; Mandee Hendricks, outfielder and Erica Such, outfielder.

Incoming sophomores are infielder Misty Hutchins, pitcher Kelsie Cross, infielder/pitcher Christi Silver and infielder/pitcher Jen Bean.

"The program is healthy," Lunney said. "They're bulls. These girls are athletic. They have good arms, are quick on the bases and play good defense. The question is: Will they hit?"

"We've got a team that can hit, but we haven't been pounding the ball like we used to. We'll have to be aggressive running the bases. I tell the girls to get one run an inning any way they can."

But competition in the league is as tough as always, Lunney said. Class B Lisbon took the MVC title last year. The Rebels compete in the league with both Class C and B teams.

"Lisbon is the team to chase in the MVC," he said. "They've got a 40 or 50 game winning streak going, and we were the last team to beat them, two or three years ago."

Madison also looks tough. They dropped from Class B to Class C this year. They'll be hard to beat in the MVC and could be formidable in the state playoffs.

But the coach isn't too worried. "We haven't lost to a Class C school in the regular season in three or four years," he said.

As far as a repeat shot at the state title, Lunney says he just wants to "make it to the playoffs and do the best we can once we get there."

Andover selectmen oppose rezoning plan

By BARBARA ADAMS

Andover selectmen voted unanimously last week to send a letter to the Land Use Regulatory Commission stating that they oppose the rezoning of land in Andover North Surplus for a proposed 42 lot subdivision, and are against the town providing services to the project. They will also ask representative of L.U.R.C. to view the property before making a decision on the rezoning.

The letter was requested by Andrew Bradford, who had appeared before the board earlier in the evening, and is co-owner of the property with his father, Dixfield realtor Robert Bradford. Bradford has to submit a letter to LURC which reflects the board's opinion on the proposed subdivision's impact on the town.

Bradford had also requested such a letter from Rumford. He said that LURC requires opinions from towns in the area.

At a selectmen's meeting in January, Bradford told the board that the subdivision would be on 3.5 miles of South Arm Road in Andover North Surplus. However, he said last week that the distance is closer to 2.5 miles.

It would be on 111.25 acres, formerly owned by International Paper Company, which was recently sold to the Bradfords through the IP Realty Corporation.

At the January meeting, Bradford said the lots would only be sold as seasonal, but he said last week that LURC had told him that it was "possible" someone could live there year-round. This caused the selectmen much concern. The difference between seasonal and year-round, Bradford said, would be the provision of services by the town, which the selectmen are strongly opposed to.

Delano told Bradford, "If one family moves there with one child, it changes the whole structure." Under those circumstances, school busing would have to be provided. Delano said the road would also have to be plowed on a regular schedule.

"I don't see any advantage to Andover whatsoever," Delano said "nothing but headaches costing the town more money and the taxpayers more money."

Sam Kilbourn back at Gould

Gould Academy will present the Maine premier of "Sam Kilbourn in Fusion at Zoom Temperature," Thursday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m., in Bingham Auditorium.

This new work opened in March 1992 at Pontine Movement Theater, Portsmouth, N.H. It is a one-man performance act production combining verbal, mime, clown, storytelling, drumming and gymnastic skills with interactive video and slides in which, as described by the artist, "the right brain intrigues with the left to confound the fear of self-atomization."

Sam Kilbourn's outrageous physical and verbal acrobatics have rebounded from theaters to corporate board rooms. He has been touring since 1978 as a stage clown and a member of the Wright Bros. award-winning vaudeville company. He delivered the 1990 Gould Academy commencement, without spoken words, resulting in "First Prize" on the ABC Television show, Prime Time Live. A former Maine assistant attorney general, Sam Kilbourn is more widely known for balancing on a stack of chairs and rollerskating on his hands. He has been described as "A real genius at mime."—The Baltimore Afro-American; "Hilarious...stole the show."—Newport This Week; and "Move(s) smoothly from straight man to prankster with the exuberance and whimsy of a 10-year-old"—Washington County (N.Y.) Post.

Sam Kilbourn credits Gould Headmaster William Clough with inspiring the 1990 commencement address—a major transition in the development of this work, which began as "Sam Kilbourn in Power" in 1989.

Tickets are available at the door. Adults $5, students $2.

Adventists offering vegetarian classes

"Some people can't imagine a meal without meat," says Goldie Mason of the Woodstock Seventh-Day Adventist Church, "Yet many Adventists have been living without meat for years."

People have this idea that vegetarians eat nothing but carrots and celery," said Mason. "but eating only that way would drive me crazy." Vegetarianism is not new. Hindus in India have long refrained from eating meat. Pythagoras, Albert Schweitzer, Albert Einstein, and Sir Isaac Newton all practiced vegetarianism, several sports stars (including Kareem Abdul Jabbar and entertainers are practicing vegetarians.

Informational classes on vegetarianism are being held each Monday evening in April, from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Hope M. Thurlow Memorial Hall on Perkins Valley Road in South Woodstock. The series will be conducted by Dr. Ron Davis, DDS; a nutritionist and dentist, along with other health personnel.

The topics for each session are: April 13: How Important Is Breakfast, How About Enriched Cereals and Flours, Problems Faced When Being a Vegetarian and also a special demonstration on making your own vegetarian gluten to substitute for meat.

April 20: Sugar, Bacteria and Steps to Regulate Sugar Consumption.

April 27: Reasons for Eating Only at Mealtime and the Special Banquet.

The classes will give people a chance to sample the food, ask questions, and pick up some recipes.

"It's not just for those who want to be vegetarians," Mason said. "You can come if you're interested in cutting down on the amount of meat you eat, or if you just want some new food ideas, or even if you're just curious."

For more information please contact Goldie Mason at 674-2655

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

A major purchase, a donation of money, acceptance of a new member and the start of a new project were among the items of business discussed at the latest meeting of Jackson-Silver Unit #68 American Legion Auxiliary.

On recent months the Unit has been using regular dishes when it serves meals to eliminate adding paper or plastic ones to the landfill. Of course, this adds to the dish washing chore. To help them with this the organization voted to purchase a new dishwasher for the kitchen.

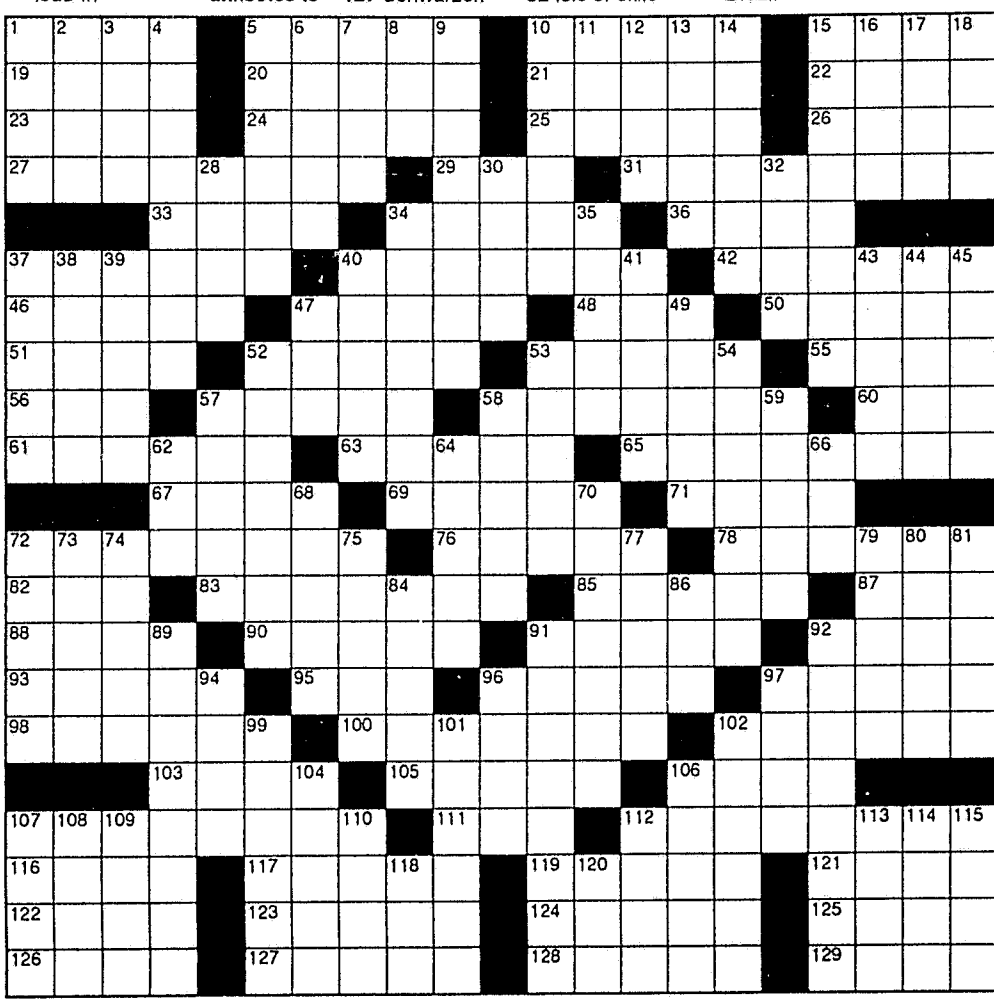

It has been learned that the local Girl Scout Troop is attempting to earn money for a trip to Washington D.C. A donation of $50 was voted to help them.

The application of Mary Risko for membership was acted upon favorably, making her the newest member.

It is annual report time once again and the forms were given out to the various committee chairmen to be completed and sent to the department chairmen. Most of these are re-

Judith Magyar Isaacson speaks at Gould Thursday

Judith Magyar Isaacson's upcoming "In the News" series talk at Gould Academy on Thursday, April 9 will draw from her book on surviving the Holocaust, "Seed of Sarah," and especially to a chapter in the new second edition, "A Time to Forgive?," detailing the author's return trips to the site of her former forced labor camp.

Some have said that its most amazing quality is its lack of bitterness, despite the hardship she endured in Auschwitz and Hirsch-Lichtenau. As New York Times Book Review critic Freeman Gottlieb writes, "European culture may have failed the human race during the Holocaust years, but it is vindicated in these memoirs in the person of the young Judith Magyar."

Judith Magyar was 19 when she arrived at Auschwitz, and her book describes the sudden change in her life that followed in Nazi concentration camps. Her survival, liberation, marriage to an American captain (Lewiston attorney Irving Isaacson), and subsequent career as a mathematics teacher and dean at Bates College, make for a compelling story.

In addition to reading from her memoirs, Mrs. Isaacson will talk about her recent trips to Hirsch, Germany, the region of her former slave labor camp, and about the German public's reactions to her memoirs on the Holocaust.

The talk begins at 7:30 p.m. in Gehring Hall. Mrs. Isaacson will sign copies of her book at 7 p.m.; it is available in the Gould bookstore weekdays from 8 a.m. to noon, as well as at the lecture.

quired by May 1.

Delegates for the department convention in June have been named. They are Vera Cross, Kathleen McAllister and Olive Risko. If the remainder of the unpaid dues can be obtained before May 1, the Unit will be eligible to send another delegate. In addition, Fannie Cummings is automatically a delegate-at-large because of having been a department president.

The long-term project which is under way is to make a display of the pictures of the past Unit presidents similar to the one which was recently done for the post commanders. At one time many of them were hanging in the hallway but were taken down for some reason and only a few can now be found. At this meeting names of the past presidents were given and various members volunteered to try to obtain photographs from surviving members of their families. It was also planned to invite all the living past presidents to the installation of officers in May, whether or not they are still members of the Unit.

At the conclusion of the regular meeting, the Unit charter was draped in loving memory of Marion Swan.

The next meeting will be on April 16. On April 18 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. there will be a leadership workshop at Jackson-Silver Unit. This will be conducted by past department president, M. Jo Miete of Wisconsin. All other Units in Oxford County Council are invited to attend. A lunch will be served at noon.

Earth Day tips for boaters

Earth Day comes around again April 22, and boaters can observe it by taking a number of easy steps that will add up to cleaner waters, advises the 415,000-member Boat Owners Association of The United States. Here's just a few:

- *Floating trash not only looks bad, it can harm swimmers, birds and animals. Stow all trash on board in a secure place and dispose of it in a proper receptacle on land. Make sure fishing lines return to port.
- *Sewage adds to the problem. Install and use a Coast Guard-approved marine sanitation device. Use restrooms on land when at dock or anchor.
- *Boat wakes cause erosion. Help prevent shoreline erosion by reducing your wake. Slow down before the marker.
- *Oil and gas are toxic. Never discharge gas, oil or antifreeze into the water. Recycle waste oil and use an oil-soaking "pillow" in your bilge to prevent leaks or spills. One spilled quart of oil can cover three football fields of water surface in no time.

*Boat maintenance can be a major source of pollution. Whenever you are using solvents, antifoulants, acids, cleansers, paints and thinners, follow instructions on the product labels and dispose of them properly. Never use a storm drain or pour anything over the side.

*Use paper, not plastic or styrofoam, and try to avoid buying products with excessive packaging.

*If you cook on board with a charcoal grill, dispose of the spent coals and ashes ashore—not in the water.

Mahoosuc Arts notes:

Collaboration and cooperation are popular terms these days—the Mahoosuc Arts Council and the Maine Conservation School combined forces this past weekend to present a benefit concert to support both organizations. A cappella singer's "Top Forty" and Maine humorist Henry Bascomb donated their time and enabled these two non-profit organizations to raise $600 in ticket prices.

The final Mahoosuc Arts program for the 1991-92 season will take place on Saturday, April 25, when the Charleston Ballet from South Carolina will be in Bethel to perform the Alice in Wonderland Ballet at 7 in the Helen Berry Auditorium at Telstar. Advance tickets for the ballet are $6 for adults and $4 for students. Tickets purchased at the door the evening of the performance are $8 for adults and $6 for students. Tickets will be available at Preb's in Bethel or by calling 824-3575.

These and all Mahoosuc Arts Programs are made possible by Mahoosuc Founding Sponsors, Season Underwriters, the Bingham Bettermint Fund, and individual contributions.

WITHERS BENEFIT SUPPER

A benefit supper will be held for Frank Withers at the Rumford Point Church.

The pot roast supper will be held Saturday, April 11 from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Jackson-Silver Post #68

Members of the Jackson-Silver American Legion Post #68 met at their meeting hall on the Gore Road, Locke Mills on Thursday evening, April 2 at 7 p.m. The meeting was opened by prayer led by post chaplain, Rodney Hanscom followed by the repeating of the American Legion preamble, as is customary.

Business to come before the meeting was temporarily postponed that members might hear from two members of the County Baseball Committee, Tom Warner, of the Rumford Post and "Junior" Wing of the Dixfield Post. They reported that County Committee are planning to have a team made up of those who would like to play from various Posts in the County. The expense in fielding a team was to be greater this year due to the fact that there was a need for new uniforms, inasmuch as the present ones were no longer serviceable.

It was voted to send two members of the Post to the next meeting of the county committee before making a decision of the Post's participation this year.

The meeting was opened for usual business after hearing from the above committeemen. Among the reports of the Committees was the following report of the nominating committee for a slate of officers for the coming year as follows: post commander, Delwin Wilson; first vice commander, Raymond Tripp; second vice commander, Brian Strickland; adjutant, Andrew Bartlett; finance officer, Richard Cross; post chaplain, Rodney Hanscom; service officer, Nicholas Clements; Americanism officer, Roland Lord; sergeant of arms, James Cobb, Jr.; historian, Edley Strickland.

Under unfinished business it was voted to send three representatives to the State convention which this year will be held in Ellsworth in June. Those who volunteered to go were, Brian Strickland, present Post commander; Delwin Wilson, present finance officer and Raymond Tripp, present sergeant of arms. The Post is to share in expenses for travel, lodging, etc.

It was further voted to make a contribution toward the expense of sending two Woodstock members of the local troop of Girl Scouts on a trip to Washington D.C. The girls were Rebecca Chandler and Sarah Hart.

Under "for the good of the Legion" Chaplain Rodney Hanscom outlined plans for a Military Graveside Service for a fellow comrade, Vernon Glover, at a cemetery in Andover on May 9 at 1 p.m.

4-H BENEFIT SHOW

The Oxford County 4-H program will hold a Benefit Show on May 21 at the Oxford Hills Junior High School. Humorist Joe Perham of West Paris will host the evening.

Everyone is invited to attend the 7 p.m. performance. Tickets cost $4 for adults and $3 for young people 14 and under ($5.00 cheaper if purchased before the evening). Tickets are available early through the Oxford County Cooperative Extension at RR 2, Box 1735, South Paris or 1-800-287-1482. Make check payable to Oxford County 4-H.

Seating will be limited and tickets sold on a first come, first serve basis.

WEST BETHEL CHURCH

MAUNDY THURS. SERVICE
The West Bethel Union Church will host a Maundy Thursday service on April 16 at 7 p.m. Communion will be served. A sunrise service on Easter morning will be held at the Rupert Grover Farm with breakfast to follow. In case of inclement weather the service will be held at the church.

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

The Oxford County Retired Teachers will meet on Saturday, April 18, at the East Stoneham Congregational Church. The social period starts at 10:30, business meeting at 11. The afternoon speaker will be Judy Green, who will tell about her three month stay in England. The scholarship fund raiser will be a book sale.

Is Your Computer Safe From Viruses?

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

Computer viruses, such as the so-called "Michelangelo" virus, are unauthorized, hidden computer codes that reproduce themselves onto other disks and hard drives. Written by sophisticated programmers, viruses strike at a predefined moment. Some viruses merely cause irritating messages on your screen, but others completely destroy your programs and data.

Because viruses spread through the transfer of data between computers, prevention is your best protection. The following procedures can significantly reduce the likelihood of being struck by computer viruses.

1. Locks. Use electronic passwords and physical locks to reduce unauthorized access to the computer itself.

2. Clean files. Prevent infected files from entering your computer in the first place. Buy software from reputable dealers, store the originals in a safe place, and test all new software on a stand-alone computer before installing the software on your network. Be aware that electronic bulletin boards and modem transmissions can also spread viruses.

3. Policies. Establish anti-virus policies. Prohibit the use of "bootleg" copies of software (which can also prevent legal problems) and non-work programs, such as games. "Write-protect" program disks and keep network programs "read only" to prevent them from accepting a virus. Require that employees who transfer files between work and home follow the same procedures for their home computers.

4. Back-ups. Prepare for detecting and decommissioning viruses that get past your preventive procedures. Back-up your data frequently so you can quickly restore it if a virus strikes.

If you do get a virus, the only reasonable cure is anti-virus software, which detects and destroys known viruses. Such software costs about $100 - $200 and is periodically updated as new viruses become known. Corner of Vernon & Main Streets, Bethel • 824-2802
